MILLIONAIRES APPEARED.

No 16-Story Apartment House Will Be Erected in Their Row.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Projects for the erection of a sixteen-story apartment building in Millionaires' row, upper Fifth avenue, recently announced, have been abandoned. When the property, which is between Sixty-fourth and Sixty-fifth streets, changed hands not long ago and plans were given out for the new building there was a great commotion among the residents near by, among them Frank J. Gould. Such a structure would have shut off the light from his new home and also would have changed many other mansions. The man who caused the excitement has now sold the plot and it is believed the holders of the adjoining property either formed a pool to buy him out or secured a purchaser who has agreed to erect a private residence.

Steamer and Schooner Overdue.
SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 29.—The Times says: "Grave fears are held for the safety of the steamer Dawson City and the schooner General Siglin. The steamer left Nome for Dutch Harbor Oct. 29 and had not reached that port on Nov. 29, nor had she been heard from, so far as known. The Dawson City expected to land a party of eight prospectors on the Bering sea coast of the Alaskan peninsula. The General Siglin was last reported on Oct. 13 headed for Dutch Harbor."

Work Begun on Big Tunnel.
NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Work has been inaugurated by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company on the extension of its underground system to Brooklyn through a tunnel underneath the East river. The opening was made at Broadway and Ann streets, Manhattan. When this work shall have been completed the subway system will be in operation, and it will be possible to ride from Brooklyn to any part of Manhattan without change of cars.

PEARY IS OPTIMISTIC
ARCTIC EXPLORER SAYS THE NORTH POLE CAN BE REACHED.

He Believes the Much-Sought Goal Can Be Attained from the Head of Smith Sound.

AN APPEAL TO AMERICANS
TO WIN THE GREATEST GEOGRAPHICAL PRIZE REMAINING.

Eternal Fame and Honor Equal to that Won by Columbus Awaiting the Man Who Reaches the Pole.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Lieut. Robert E. Peary, the Arctic explorer, delivered an address to-night before the National Geographical Society on the subject of Arctic exploration. After discussing explorations of the past Mr. Peary, speaking of the future, said: "In spite of the amount of work which has been done in the north polar regions during the past few years the work is not complete. The Archipelago of Franz Josef Land has, it is true, been delimited, and its northern terminus removed from the field of uncertainty. The lands north of the North American archipelago and west of Ellesmere Land have also been delimited as to their northern coasts. The northern terminus of the Greenland archipelago has been rounded and America holds the record for the most northerly land in the world, the northern point of the largest of the north polar land groups. But there are still several gaps to be filled before the north polar work can be considered as finished. And the head of the Smith sound 'gateway to the pole' is the central point from which to close this work. It is the point from which can be reached and determined that stretch of still unknown coast on the eastern shore of Greenland, the point from which can be reached and determined the inter-ramification of the great fjord systems of northern Greenland, the point from which can be reached and determined the gap in the coastline on the west coast of Grinnell Land between Adirondack and Sverdrup's farthest; the point from which the practically unknown land along the eastern side of Kennedy and Robeson channels can be reached, and the point from which the pole itself can be reached. It will be reached. "It may seem to indicate overconfidence to state boldly that the pole can be reached; and yet it is a fact, even though it has not been reached, that it can be reached. For years and years. Each time we have made a little nearer, each time we have gained a little more, and I say to you here tonight that it is not an impossibility; that it can be done; that it is no more difficult than many of the great projects which we are being pushed to completion every day, and which require money, persistence, and some ability to bring to full fruition. "The man who has the proper party, the proper equipment and the proper experience, and can start fresh from the northern coast of Grinnell Land with the earliest returning light in February, will hold with him the prize of the last great geographical prize that ranks with the prize which Columbus won for himself and his countrymen a fame that will last as long as human life exists upon the globe. Grants this shall we let others win the prize from us? "Within the past few years the United States has been to the front among the nations. Our industrial development and wealth has startled the world to-day. Our men of diplomacy have never so great, fluency in science held the attention of Europe. Our battleships show the highest percentage of effectiveness. Our yachts win races after race from the highest foreign talent. If there are any other prizes

DISEASE TO BE EXTERMINATED
DR. SALMON WILL DIRECT THE CAMPAIGN IN PERSON.
Export Trade Likely to Be Diverted from New England to New York and Other Ports.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—In pursuance of the purpose of the Agricultural Department to spare no effort in the extermination of the foot and mouth disease prevailing among live stock in the New England States, Dr. Salmon, chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, decided to-day to go to Boston and take charge of the campaign in person.

Discussing the question, Dr. Salmon said that the department had received due notice of the action of Great Britain in quarantining against the New England ports, but that the department's decision had been influenced more by a desire to protect the remainder of our own country than by any fear of losing our export trade. He added that the action of Great Britain could not be construed as at all hostile, the conditions apparently justifying it. The opinion also was expressed that as long as there is no general quarantine the exports would not be materially affected, the expectation being that the trade which has heretofore left New England ports will find outlet through other cities.

Figures showing the extent of Boston's export trade in American live stock place the value of the business for last year at about $8,000,000. The cattle shipments numbered 75,557, sheep 70,000 and the horses 1,523. In addition more than 30,000 head of Canadian cattle and more than 16,000 head of Canadian sheep were shipped from that port. There also were quite extensive shipments from Portland.

Discussing the work to be done, Dr. Salmon said that he expected to have a force of from fifty to one hundred assistants who will be scattered over the infected district. He said there was no effectual remedy as there is no general quarantine, the slaughter of the affected cattle and that he expected to resort to that remedy wherever necessary. The department, he said, decided to allow live stock to go through the quarantined States for immediate slaughter providing the cars containing them are sealed by government inspectors at stockyards before reaching the infected region and the seals remain undisturbed.

VERY CONTAGIOUS.
Bacteriologists Explain the Hoof and Mouth Disease.
NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—In order that the danger of infection from the hoof and mouth disease now reported to be prevalent among the cattle of Massachusetts, Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut may not spread to this State, Dr. Ernest J. Lederer, president of the Department of Health, is taking precautions. However, most of the meat used here comes from the Western stockyards, and the milk from New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. Veterinary inspectors have been stationed in New York, Kings, Queens and Richmond counties. They have orders to use the strictest measures to keep out any cattle which may show any sign of the disease.

According to the bacteriologists of the City Health Department the disease is new to this country, but is well known in Europe, especially in Belgium. The mortality rate is not high, but is extremely contagious. It is due largely to the heat from organic matter and it attacks the hind hoofs first, the disease is transmitted to the mouth when the animal licks his feet, and is then called hoof and mouth disease. The germs of the disease enter the blood through the stomach, much the same as those of diphtheria do, the temperature is elevated, and fever sets in. This, of course, affects the milk of the cow and naturally will injure those who drink it.

A Dutch cow brought from Belgium into this country in 1841. It was called the cow distemper and the government lost New England ports to the shipment of cattle in a year, finally stamping it out. Destruction of the infected animals is said to be the only way to check it.

Beef Industry Not Menaced.
CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—Arthur G. Leonard, general manager of the Union Stockyards and Transit Company, says there is very little menace to the beef industry or livestock exports of this country or to the foreign consumption and trade in the quarantine declared by Secretary Wilson against the cattle in the New England States. The number of cattle sent to market and exported from the hoof from the affected district is very small, as there are very few beef cattle raised in that part of the country. There are more or less dairies kept together and housed closely and more susceptible to disease than the cattle on the range. The only particular result so far as affecting the live-stock situation is concerned is the closing of the New England ports to the shipment of cattle to Western live stock and changing the points of export to other ports. The principal part of the live stock of this country is dressed and goes right through the quarantined district for export.

The declaration of quarantine was given by John A. Spoor, president of the Union Stockyards and Transit Company, and G. M. Skinner, of the International Live Stock Exposition.

Last Shipment from Boston.
BOSTON, Nov. 29.—The Cunard line steamer Sylvania, which will be the last vessel to leave Boston with cattle for a British port under the embargo against their shipment on account of the prevalence of the foot and mouth disease in New England is raised, hauled into the stream about 6 o'clock to-night, and will sail for Liverpool to-morrow with 664 cattle and 750 sheep on board. The vessel cannot reach Liverpool before the end of the year, but the English Board of Agriculture forbidding the landing in Great Britain from New England ports to-day and to-day, said that the Boston agent of the line has received assurances from the company's head office in Philadelphia that the shipments from the Sylvania's cargo can be landed in Liverpool.

Buffalo Market Overstocked.
BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 29.—The order of the secretary of agriculture forbidding the export of live stock from New England ports has had the effect of forcing some of the export buyers at the local stockyards out of the market for the present. About 2,000 head of cattle and sheep, which arrived here yesterday and to-day, placed on the local market or shipped to New York and Philadelphia. The shipments from Canada also have increased, and the large supply of stock thrown on the local market has caused a slight decline in prices.

Must Be Disinfected.
OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 29.—The quarantine department has ordered that owing to the outbreak of foot and mouth disease in the United States all cattle entering Canada from the Eastern States shall be cleaned and thoroughly disinfected at the border.

WOMAN DEAD AND LOVER HELD.
Sudden Demise of an Illinois Girl in a Chicago Hotel.
CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—The police are investigating the death of a young woman, said to be Miss Laura L. Pattee, of Springfield, Ill., who died early to-day in the Grand Pacific Hotel. In company with a man she came to the hotel Thanksgiving day. They registered under the names of "C. J. O'Donnell and wife, Duluth, Minn."

Early this morning the man sent word to the office of the hotel that a doctor was needed in their room at once, as the woman with him was dying. Dr. Stringfield, the house physician, hurried to the room and upon his arrival found the woman just breathing her last. There were no marks of violence on her body and appearances go to prove the story of the man that she died of heart disease. The police were notified at once, and the man taken into custody. He declared that O'Donnell was his name and at first refused to give the name of the young woman. Later he said that she was Miss Laura J. Pattee, of Springfield, Ill. O'Donnell will be held until after the man has been investigated by the coroner's jury.

FRENCH MARRIAGE BROKERS.
A Decision Which Gives Their Business Legal Recognition.
Paris Messenger.

Matrimonial agents in France are jubilant. The law which up to the present has dealt somewhat severely with them and refused to consider as binding contracts made by them is apparently beginning to take up another attitude. At any rate, this was the case recently when the Chambre des Requetes had to consider an action from Toulouse. Some time back a solicitor living in the neighborhood of that town engaged the services of a local matrimonial agent, who in due course found a suitable wife for his client. The marriage took place, and the agent applied for a certificate of validity. But the solicitor did not appear inclined to pay the sum agreed upon. He first declared that the amount was not a proportion with the services rendered, and subsequently refused to pay anything whatever. The parties then went and public order. The local court dismissed the agent's claim on questions of fact. He appealed, and the Appeal Court also decided against him, holding that "money payments for matrimonial negotiations were immoral and illegal."

The plaintiff in the Chambre des Requetes claimed in his favor and ordered a fresh trial of the action by the Civil Court. A passage in the speech made by the advocate general is well worth quoting. After showing that marriage had always been considered as the basis of society, he said: "How can the fact of facilitating a marriage, of placing two families in relation, of procuring a companion for the man who wishes to create a family be declared a priori, ipso facto, an act contrary to law, to law and to public order? The contrary is the case. A priori and on principle, it is a meritorious action, and cannot be considered as a disreputable person? By no means. A disinterested intermediary may commit a detestable action, while an interested one may commit an excellent one. Everything depends on the circumstances."

AN ODD GOLD BRICK.
Memory Method of a Joke Formerly Practiced in Boston.
Boston Journal.

If the columns of one of our interesting contemporaries appears the following laughmaker:

Teacher—In what year was the battle of Waterloo fought?
"Pupils—I don't know."
Teacher—It's simple enough if you only would learn how to cultivate artificial memory. Remember the twelve apostles. Add half that number to your age. That's eighteen. Multiply that by 100. That's 1,800. Take the twelve apostles again. Add a quarter of that number to your age. That's fifteen. Add what you've got. That's 1,815. That's the date. Quite simple, you see, to remember dates if you will only adopt my system.

Another contemporary copies it and heads it "She Wasn't a Boston Teacher." She wasn't; but he was.

At least he was teaching in Boston some dozen years ago. He was a genuine mnemonist or mnemonic, and we laugh now as we think of his artifices. One of his lessons was the remembering of the year George Washington was born, and we laugh now as we think of his artifices. One of his lessons was the remembering of the year George Washington was born, and we laugh now as we think of his artifices. One of his lessons was the remembering of the year George Washington was born, and we laugh now as we think of his artifices.

New York Evening Sun.

"What a nice cat you have," said the shopper to the keeper of one of the little side-street shops that out-Dickens Dickens in improbability.

"Yes," assented the shopkeeper, as she rolled the parcel of spoons in newspaper, it round with crochets cotton and clipped the end of the cat's tail with shears. "Charles II's a fine cat, though he doesn't ever have any meat. I haven't had him very long. The cat before, Charles I. I had for years and years, and he used to have his meat regularly.
